

United States Marine Corps Major Samuel Delgado, military liaison for Haiti's second largest city, and Marist College graduate, class of 1977.

United States Marine Corps Major Mario Labpax, interpreter and military liaison for Haiti's largest city, and Marist College graduate, class of 1978.

And former assistant commissioner of the New York City Police Department, Paul J. Browne, the deputy director of the international police monitors in Haiti, and Marist College graduate, class of 1971.

They are three reasons who our mission in Haiti was a success. And if the President of the United States called again tomorrow and asked me for three good men, I'd call Delgado, Labpax and Browne. And if the President of the United States called tomorrow and asked me for three hundred good men and women, I'd call the Marist College placement office.

Professor Lavin described it as an "uncanny coincidence." But I'm not so sure. It should be no surprise that the tenets of ethics and of public service rooted in the Marist tradition and carried forward in its classrooms emerge in its graduates, just when the world needs them most.

I urge the class of 95 to hold fast to those tenets, and to make ethical conduct and service to your fellow human beings the hallmarks of whatever careers await you. America, and the world, sorely need both. America and the world also need people who will stand on principle. And, uphold in their daily lives the values that this institution believes in.

My advice to the class of 95 is: Tell the truth, be loyal to your friends, and not blind to their failings, and set a standard of ethical conduct for yourselves and to be true to it no matter what.

Whatever perceived advantage in your personal or public life is sacrificed by doing the right thing is not worth attaining if it means compromising what you believe in.

One other thing: I have never made a career decision based on money, and I have never regretted it. I can see all of you with loan payments cringing. But I mean it. Simply put, money is overrated. America has plenty of money and plenty of money makers, what it needs is idealists.

I urge class of 95 to be America's new idealists.

Somewhere between Dallas, Vietnam and Watergate, our idealism was shattered. Idealism was the great casualty of my generation. It need not be yours.

America needs new, energetic voices to counter the current wisdom that says all government is suspect. The class of 95 should be that voice.

America needs a conscience that counters the lie that the poor are responsible for their own plight. The class of 95 should be that conscience.

America needs the confidence to refute the proposition that self interest should come before all other interests. The class of 95 should have that confidence.

There is also a disturbing manifesto of government mistrust abroad in the land. It is embraced by a radical fringe that is not prepared to die for its cause but ready to kill for it. But it is not embraced by the radicals alone. It is espoused by newcomers to leadership who say they are drawn to government for the principal purpose of dismantling it. It has also given rise to a new mean-spiritedness and a new cynicism; one that casts a cold eye on the plight of the poor and the aspirations of minorities and immigrants. And it has given rise to a new isolationism which would confine American foreign policy to the dark parameters of narrow self interest.

All of this suspicious introspection is unbecoming of the American character.

Americans are, by nature, generous and optimistic and we need to reclaim our heritage. You need to reclaim it.

I was recently told about a retired General Electric employee who had immigrated to the United States from the Ukraine during World War Two. He came, by way of Russia, by way of Germany, by way of France. He was a refugee. Along the way he met American soldiers, the first Americans he had ever seen. He said the Americans were fundamentally different from him and from everyone he had ever known.

The Americans were full of hope. They were full of optimism and idealism. They laughed easily and looked to the future. He knew no one like them. They were unencumbered by the old European notions of family position, of wealth, of status. They were free of the elitism that held so many people back. He said he saw the Americans as "a new tribe," completely and irresistibly different from his experience, and he desperately wanted to be a member of the tribe.

That was 50 years ago. But the world still sees Americans in much the same way. In Haiti, we were welcomed as liberators by the poorest people in the Western Hemisphere. The graffiti on the walls in Port-Au-Prince said: "Americans, please stay in Haiti for 50 years."

American self-interest was served in Haiti, certainly as it applied to curtaining the flow of illegal immigration into the United States. But we also went to Haiti because it was the right thing to do. We put our might where our mouth was. We fed the hungry. We saved lives. We routed the bullies, and rescued fellow human beings from despots. We restored democracy. We treated some of the poorest people in the world with great dignity, which was a completely new experience for them.

We need to practice that charity at home, and not be afraid to remain engaged abroad. America needs you to do that. America needs optimists. It needs idealists. America needs the class of 95 to be engaged in the world.

If your country asks you to serve, say yes. If it doesn't ask, volunteer.

We need to have the kind of faith in ourselves that the world has in America.

We need Americans who believe, as President Kennedy did, that "Here on Earth, God's work must truly be our own."•

CONGRATULATING SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY 1995 NCAA LACROSSE CHAMPIONS

• Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I rise toady to pay tribute to our Nation's 1995 NCAA Men's Lacrosse Champions, the Orangemen of Syracuse University. I am particularly proud both as a New Yorker and as an alumnus of both the university and its law school.

Last Monday, before a crowd of over 26,000, the Orange bested the Maryland Terrapins—who enjoyed a home field advantage—by a score of 13-9 to win the collegiate title. This victory was a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Roy Simmons, Sr.—the father of SU Coach Roy Simmons, Jr., and the legend of Syracuse lacrosse—to whom the Orangemen had dedicated their season. The victory for Syracuse marks the sixth time that the Orange have won the national championship and a record 13th straight trip to the final four.

The young men of the Syracuse University lacrosse team have a lot to be proud of in this victory. It is the crowning achievement in this arduous sport demonstrating that a commitment to teamwork and excellence do pay off. This is especially true among the upperclassmen who could have rested on their 1993 championship laurels. By example, their hard work to get back on top will be carried on by SU teams for years to come. A tradition of winning has been maintained, and it is a tradition that I believe future Syracuse teams will sustain.

We can all be proud of the accomplishment of these young men. They have risen to claim top honors in this demanding sport without sacrificing their academic standards. Mr. President, once again, I salute our Nation's NCAA Lacrosse Champions, the Syracuse University Orangemen.●

THE EVERYBODY WINS PROGRAM

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, this spring on Capitol Hill an exiting literacy program began with the help of Senators and Senate staff. The children at Brent Elementary School are now being read to once a week during their lunch hours by volunteers in the Everybody Wins Program. Everybody Wins is a successful literacy program which matches up professionals with at-risk, inner-city school children as reading partners.

During each power lunch session, the reading partners select a book and read aloud together—an activity that the Commission on Reading calls the single most important activity for building a child's eventual success in reading.

Dr. Frances Plummer, the principal of Brent Elementary School, has been instrumental in making this program a success. Dr. Plummer, a native Washingtonian, attended the D.C. schools, from kindergarten through receiving her B.S. degree from D.C. Teachers College. She then went on to earn a masters degree and doctorate of education from George Washington University. Her career has included being a teacher and assistant principal in the Washington D.C. public schools before going on to become the principal of the Brent Elementary School.

Dr. Plummer's philosophy is "Teach each child at your school as you would want your own child taught." I, along with my colleagues who are participating in the program would like to commend Dr. Plummer's patience, hard work, and a lifetime of dedication to the children that she serves.●

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 6, 1995

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today it stand in recess until the hour of 9:15 a.m., on Tuesday, June 6, 1995, that following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be deemed approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and that Senator SNOWE be immediately recognized to speak for up to 30 minutes; further, that at the hour of 9:45 a.m., the Senate immediately resume consideration of S. 735, the antiterrorism bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess between the hours of 12:30 and 2:15 on Tuesday for the weekly policy luncheons to meet; further that Senators have until the hour of 12:30 on Tuesday to file first-degree amendments to S. 735, the antiterrorism bill, in order to comply with rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SCHEDULE

Mr. LOTT. For the information of all Senators, a cloture motion was filed on the antiterrorism bill earlier today by the leader. Therefore, Members should be aware that if they have an amendment on the list they must file the amendment by 12:30 tomorrow, that is Tuesday, to qualify under rule XXII. Senators should be aware that rollcall votes are possible prior to the policy luncheon recess.

ORDER FOR RECESS

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that Senator SPECTER be recognized when he comes in shortly for his remarks, and following that, that the Senate stand in recess under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. SPECTER pertaining to the submission of Senate Resolution 128 are located in today's RECORD under "Submission of Concurrent and Senate Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

RECESS UNTIL 9:15 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 9:15 a.m., Tuesday, June 6.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 6:58 p.m., recessed until tomorrow, Tuesday, June 6, 1995, at 9:15 a.m.
